Re: Fleet Hospital Storage Facility
Naval Supply Center, Cheatham Annex
Williamsburg, Virginia

Dear Jim:

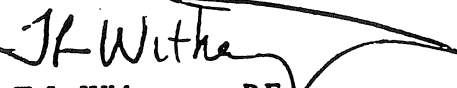

As this job draws to a close, I would just like to take the time to thank you for all your help in making the Fleet Hospital Storage Facility project a success. I would like to think that our Quality Control organization played a considerable role in helping deliver to the Navy a first-class building and, as my Quality Control representative for both electrical and HVAC, you deserve a tremendous amount of credit for your contribution to this effort.

Your knowledge of and experience with both industrial power systems and HVAC systems was invaluable in terms of ensuring the smooth integration of the building's systems. Your ability to provide guidance and to troubleshoot problems in the field played a large part in allowing us to deliver this building ahead of the Navy's schedule. Your willingness to work whatever hours our schedule demanded allowed our testing and inspection functions to keep pace with production, in spite of the many retests that were required due to improperly installed equipment or "phantom" leaks. Most important, however, was your ability to perform your duties as inspector, coordinator, and problem solver with minimal supervision. Your take-charge attitude allowed me to spend more time concentrating in other areas, confident in the knowledge that the mechanical and electrical work being performed was being closely monitored.

Once again, thanks for your assistance with this project. As you move on to other assignments, please feel free to give my name as a reference. I will be more than happy to provide information to a prospective employer or client on your behalf. Good luck to you in your future endeavors and keep in touch; you never know when I might need an able assistant to deliver another first-class project.

Very truly yours,

CLANCY & THEYS CONSTRUCTION COMPANY
